What is a group insurance?

In addition to a tax-efficient way of rewarding your employees, group insurance is an essential part of a competitive, contemporary salary package. In this way, you help to build the future of your employees and those talents can also secure the future of your company.

As an employer, you save for your employees' supplementary pension through a group insurance plan. The statutory pension – the first pension pillar – will not be sufficient in most cases to maintain the same standard of living after retirement.

The OECD, the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, has shown this. Their report shows that Belgians with an average gross salary of EUR 3,758 in 2021 could count on a pension of 43.4% compared to their last gross salary. These figures take into account the entire Belgian population and therefore also pensioners with a shorter career and also employees who temporarily did not work or worked less.

Gross replacement ratio (Belgium, 2021)

The OECD figures show that with an average salary of EUR 3,758, the gross replacement ratio upon retirement amounts to 43.4%. If you earn more, your replacement ratio will be proportionally even smaller.

OECD: Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development

You can also choose to include personal employee contributions in the group insurance plan. This is how you build a higher supplementary pension for the future.

In addition to building up retirement provisions, you can also provide extra protection for your employees in the event of incapacity for work and death by adding risk cover to the group insurance.

Why a group insurance?

A group insurance policy is one of the most important fringe benefits for employees and is, therefore, a tool for attracting and retaining talent within your company. The group insurance premiums are also deductible as a professional expense for the employer. Moreover, your employees benefit from a tax advantage if there are personal contributions.

Due to favourable taxation, a group insurance policy offers a higher net return for an employee than cash remuneration.

Possibilities

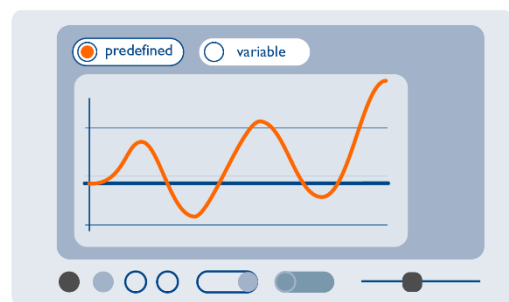

With a pre-defined return

You select a fixed rate of return at the start, which is then allocated to your employees. This could be 0%, 1% or 3.25% for instance, or even as a function of the minimum rate of return.

Option supplementary allocated pension amount:

You can choose to combine this with an extra return/allocation of a supplementary allocated pension amount.

This can be allocated either automatically or at your explicit request once the return exceeds a certain threshold.

With a variable return

The return is determined as a function of one or two indices selected by Vivium. As a result, your employees will benefit from the potential of the financial markets.

The product's main features

Surplus

'Vivium Premium Benefits' enables you to build up a surplus. By surplus, we mean the positive difference between the return achieved from the underlying investment funds and the funding obligations of the pension commitment.

This surplus can be used in flexible ways:

to pay allocated pension amounts (also known as a 'contribution holiday'). 	to satisfy your minimum funding requirements 	to exceptionally make an additional commitment to your employees 	to distribute the return amongst all affiliates in the pension commitment

Spread allocations

To protect you from less favourable times on the investment market, Vivium ensures that you don't take too much risk by spreading your allocations in monthly deposits.

Buffer

In addition, you can also opt to set up a 'savings fund' at the start, a so-called safety buffer so that you do not have to pay additional financing immediately if things go less well.

Switch of investment fund

You may switch to another Vivium investment fund or a combination of several Vivium investment funds whenever you wish. We offer you this option free of charge once a year.

Sustainable investing

Sustainability risks are integrated into investment decisions

For the EB Branch 23 funds, Vivium mainly selects underlying funds that respect the ESG guidelines. We are convinced that investments in companies and sectors focusing on sustainable development in ESG (Environment, Society and Good governance) are the best choices in the long term.

We underline this conviction by selecting external asset managers for our Branch 23 offering based on various criteria, including the way in which they manage sustainability risks.

Each of the Investment Managers must – at the minimum – sign the Principles for Responsible Investment, a global initiative supported by the United Nations. In addition, we prefer funds that integrate ESG selection criteria into their investment policy and exclude controversial activities.

For the underlying funds, Vivium takes into account sustainability risks based on the Morningstar Sustainability Rating, the Morningstar ESG Risk Score, the Morningstar Carbon Risk Score and Fossil Fuel Engagement.

The underlying Triodos investment funds also have a Towards Sustainability label, a quality standard on sustainable investment for financial products. Funds with this label meet various requirements around exclusion, impact, engagement, transparency and accountability. The label is under independent supervision.

Vivium offers sustainable investment options

Vivium ensures that in its Branch 23 offering it chooses mainly underlying funds with sustainable characteristics (art. 8 SFDR), as well as underlying funds that have a sustainable investment objective (art. 9 SFDR).

FAQ

Why invest in Branch 23?

General positive trend in the medium term for Branch 23

Branch 23 is based on an obligation of means. This means that the capital and return on investment in Branch 23 are not guaranteed by the pension institution. However, a minimum return of 1,75% at present must be guaranteed as laid down in the Law on Supplementary Pensions (WAP/LPC). In recent years, the trend in returns on Branch 23 investments has been positive and they have exceeded this minimum return. The chart here below shows you the returns when investing via the classic risk profiles over a period of 20 years, based on the MSCI World Index (equities) and the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index (bonds).

What is Cash Balance?

Pension promise

In a “Cash Balance” plan, you promise the affiliates a pension amount that capitalises on a certain return. This pension amount can be a fixed amount or an amount expressed as a percentage of the salary. We call this amount an “allocated pension amount”.

Return

As an employer you promise a predefined return to your employees. This can be a fixed return, for example 0%, 1%... or a variable return following the guaranteed rate of return imposed by the Law on Supplementary Pensions (art. 24), currently 1,75%.

Collective capitalisation

The employer’s deposits, also referred to as ‘allocations’ end up in a collective financing fund, where they are collectively managed for all affiliates together. In the background, the rights per employee are calculated annually. Upon payment or transfer of the accrued reserves, the lump sum is withdrawn from the collective financing fund.

Also possible in a cafeteria plan

In addition to a retirement lump sum or death benefit before retirement, Vivium offers various types of risk covers.

You can then opt for a fixed formula for everyone or you can leave the choice between certain formulas to your employees.

Minimum guaranteed return

The legislator imposes a minimum guaranteed return so that employees receive, at the time of retirement or upon transfer of their accumulated savings on termination of employment, at least the amounts deposited for them capitalised at a statutorily established interest rate.

This statutory return must be guaranteed by the organiser (employer). If the return from the deposited contributions to a pension institution is less than what is imposed by law, the organiser is obliged to make an additional payment.
